President’s Message

Welcome back! On behalf of our entire SWCOLT Board, I would like to welcome you to the return of our in-person conference.

I hope that this year’s Conference theme, “Building Bridges, Breaking Barriers,” represents the heart of our time learning and collaborating together in Reno, Nevada. This theme will be evident in the many sessions and speakers you interact with, including Akash Patel’s keynote on “Empathy, Action Civics and Cross-Cultural Understanding for Social Justice in the World Language Classroom,” and the open invitation of the League of Leadership two-part session, “Harnessing our Superpowers to Lead.”

SWCOLT has always been a special event—a place of collaboration and support. We hope that this return to a live conference revitalizes the opportunity to share ideas and experiences during formal sessions and also informally at luncheons, our Friday night reception and celebration, and as you socialize and explore the unique sights of Reno. As educators at every level, from Pre-K through postsecondary, you hold the power to nurture an environment of listening and learning that honors the voices, identities, cultures and languages in our schools and communities. We invite you to share your vision and rejuvenate your “superpower” as an educator and leader. Thank you for all you do to support students, colleagues, and communities through language education.

It is especially exciting to be collaborating this year with the Professional Language Association of Nevada (PLAN) as they celebrate their 10th year as a state organization. The conference begins on Thursday with ticketed pre-conference workshops offered by nationally-recognized leaders in the field of world language education. General session presentations run all day Friday and Saturday. Following Akash Patel’s keynote presentation during the plenary session on Friday, SWCOLT will honor each state’s Teacher of the Year and will then announce the 2022 SWCOLT Teacher of the Year! The SWCOLT Teacher of the Year will represent our regional organization at ACTFL in November 2022. Don’t miss the official Membership Reception and celebration on Friday as well, with hors d’oeuvres and time to reconnect! On Saturday, the conference luncheon will celebrate PLAN’s birthday, including recognition of our outstanding scholarship and award winners.

A special thank you to all our presenters, exhibitors, and volunteers. This conference would not be possible without the tireless work of the local committees, led by Julie Lozada Ocampo and Ryan Smith, and SWCOLT board members who dedicated untold hours of energy and dedication to make this conference a success! A special thanks also goes to our truly fearless leader and “new” Executive Director, Jocelyn Raught, and to our Program Chair, Ginger Rinaldi, for her careful selection and programming of sessions and workshops.

Every aspect of this conference was designed with you, the language educator, in mind. We thank you very much for attending this conference, and we hope that you leave enriched by the numerous professional development opportunities available to you. Please be sure to join us next year in beautiful Salt Lake City, Utah (February 23-25) for SWCOLT-UFLA 2023.

2022 SWCOLT PLENARY

Friday, March 25: Please join us for the President’s Welcome, the introduction of our 2022 SWCOLT Teacher of the Year, and a special keynote message from . . .

Akash Patel - Dallas Independent School District - Dallas, TX

2022 ACTFL President-Elect

“Empathy, Action Civics and Cross-Cultural Understanding for Social Justice in the World Language Classroom”

Growing up in small rural communities in Oklahoma where people had never seen or met “a brown Indian guy who spoke five languages and had traveled to over 50 countries”, Akash Patel decided to do something to bridge the gap in global learning and cross-cultural understanding. At first, he started inviting his international friends to video call his students using platforms like Zoom, Skype and Google Meet. Eventually, he mobilized over 1,200 volunteers from over 150 countries to join his Global Connect database at the Happy World Foundation, a global education nonprofit he founded after the passing of his twin brother, Anand Happy Patel.

In his first year of teaching, Patel was recognized by the Oklahoma State Department of Education and the Multicultural Education Institute as the January 2015 Educator of the Month and the 2015 Multicultural Teacher of the Year. In 2018, Patel received ACTFL’s Leo Benardo Award for Innovation in K-12 Language Education. He was also selected as one of the top 50 teachers worldwide and shortlisted as a finalist for the Varkey Foundation’s $1 million Global Teacher Prize. In June 2020, Patel was elected to the National Council of the United Nations Association of the USA (UNA-USA) to serve the 2020-2022 term. He was appointed as the chair of the Global Engagement Summit, the largest gathering of American grassroots change makers and global activists in the General Assembly Hall at the United Nations and the chair of the UNA-USA Educators Affinity group that helps educators champion the Sustainable Development Goals in their classrooms. In 2021, Patel was inducted in the International Literacy Association’s 30 Literacy Leaders Under 30 list and was granted an "Einstein" green card by the United States Citizenship and Immigration Services for his contributions to global education.

Patel currently teaches Spanish at Ignite Middle School, a 100% low socioeconomic middle school in Dallas. He has trained over 40,000 teachers to use the Global Connect database. Today, thousands of American children travel to countries worldwide through Happy World Foundation’s global education programs.

Keynote description:

Classroom Technology makes it easier than ever to connect students to the world. But how can we better harness these connections to empower learners to think and act beyond their classroom walls? ACTFL President-elect Akash Patel will share resources from the Happy World Foundation for standards-based interdisciplinary learning experiences that connect, engage and empower students as valued global citizens. During the keynote, the speaker will model a live video call with one or two Happy World Inc. guests from another country and show teachers how they could turn the same video call into a lesson of empathy, action civics, global citizenship and social justice. The modeling of a lesson is key for teachers to realize that they, too, could apply and use this as a resource in their classroom as soon as they return from SWCOLT.

THANK YOU TO ALL OF OUR 2022 SWCOTL/PLAN PRESENTERS
Teacher of the Year for Arizona Language Teacher Association. Hongyu Yang has been exposed to diverse cultures throughout her career and speaks Mandarin, as well as several other languages. Mrs. Yang also serves as her school immersion program professional learning community leader, leading K to 6th Grade Mandarin immersion teachers, who plan together. Mrs. Yang comes from Shaoxing, China, and she is delighted to be entering her 8th year in the United States as a Mandarin immersion teacher. She has been working in education for 12 years, has a BA in China from Shaoxing University, and received her M.A. in Elementary Education from Northern Arizona University. Mrs. Yang loves teaching immersion programs, and she brings as much of her culture into the classroom as possible through music and learning about different traditions. In 2018, Mrs. Yang was invited by Arizona State University to be a master teacher, where she conducted a Professional Development Workshop for the university’s DLI Academy. Through the years, Mrs. Yang has given presentations on best practices in teaching at many conferences. The core of Mrs. Yang’s educational philosophy is that through early and sustained immersion in the Chinese language with culture integrated throughout, students will achieve high academic attainment, be highly proficient in two languages, and will develop sensitivity and tolerance for other cultures.

Teacher of the Year for California Language Teachers Association, Dr. Vicky Xiong-Lor is the Co-President of the Central California Dual Language Consortium housed at Fresno State. This is a working group of like-minded individuals from both the state and local levels who come together to collaborate on topics and issues related to, and for the advancement of, dual and world language instruction for Pre-K-12 teachers and students. In addition, she is the Lead Facilitator for the Hmong language strand with Central California World Language Project (CCWLP). Dr. Xiong-Lor is also an advisory board member for the California Reading and Literature Project (CRLP) at Fresno State, where she was a recipient of the J.S. Shefelbine Leadership in Literacy Award in 2018. In 2021, Dr. Vicky Xiong-Lor was selected as the Hmong Educator of the Year by Recreation, Impact, Sports and Ethics, Inc. (RISE, Inc.). Dr. Xiong-Lor is a member of the National Hmong Educator Coalition and serves as a Hmong language consultant as well as a Hmong centric ethnic studies curriculum leader working across the nation with teachers in Minnesota, Wisconsin, and California under the non-profit organization, MN Zej Zog. She is the Hmong language consultant for three charter schools in Minnesota, as well as a full-time teacher of Hmong as a World Language at both Clovis High School and Buchanan High School in the Clovis Unified School District. In addition, Dr. Xiong-Lor prepares Hmong future teachers for dual language immersion programs and high school world language classrooms in the Central Valley in the Hmong Bilingual Authorization Program (Hmong BAP) at Fresno State. Dr. Xiong-Lor’s passion lies in preserving languages for future generations. Her work revolves around Hmong language reclamation. Her work has been instrumental in developing Hmong language, literacy, culture and history standards and Hmong centric ethnic studies curriculum free of charge for Hmong teachers nationwide.

Laurette Nassif completed her PhD in French at CU Boulder. A native speaker and CU alumni, she is a strong proponent of immersion and believes primarily in using the target language and authentic material in the classroom. Through her mission of preparing students to acquire the language, Laurette prepares her students to think outside of their communities and to become global citizens. Laurette believes that the mission of the teacher is to make the language accessible and enjoyable to everyone. She is honored to help her students learn about the French language and culture. Laurette is honored to be the recipient of the Colorado Conference of Foreign Language Teachers (CCFLT) 2021 Teacher of the Year award.
Rosa M. Bell was born and raised in Panama, Republic of Panama. Her relevant education includes a Masters of Secondary Education in World Language - Spanish from Hawaii Pacific University (HPU); a second Masters of Art in Teaching with Specialization in E-teaching and Learning from National University; and a Bachelor’s degree in Early Childhood Education, Cum-Laude from National University.

Ms. Bell’s professional experience started fifteen years ago working with military families, special education students, multilingual learners, diverse/multicultural populations, and the community in general in the education field. She began her career in education as an Early Childhood education preschool teacher. Over the past decade, Ms. Bell has grown by teaching different grade levels of World Language Spanish. She has participated in over 10 workshops that included providing staff development training, and addresses at local, regional, and national conferences and in schools throughout the United States.

Rosa Bell is a former president of the American Association of Teachers of Spanish and Portuguese (AATSP-2020). Currently she is the Hawaii State Director of the Sociedad Honoraria Hispánica in which she continues to support teachers/advisors to incorporate culture and diversity with innovative ideas for students to receive the best quality educational resources. Her leadership experience includes mentoring new teachers for the HIDOE, having served as a teacher mentor volunteer in ACTFL since 2018. Ms. Bell is a leader in the HIDOE World Language OCIS Annex Complex in Honolulu, HI. Participating in the World Language leadership committee enhanced her planning skills as well as her ability to create curriculum to provide world language teachers with professional development courses. The World Language Symposia in the State of Hawaii (2018), and the professional conferences at national level as in the American Council of Teachers of Foreign Languages (ACTFL - 2018 to 2021), and in the American Association of Teachers of Spanish and Portuguese (AATSP - 2019 to 2022), have all expanded her advocacy for learning a second language and culture.

Recently Ms. Bell founded a virtual Professional Learning Community (PLC) on Culture and Diversity with educators at national and international levels. This Professional Learning Community advocates for the integration of culture and diversity in World Language classrooms. Along with her virtual PLC is the "cafecito cultural", a weekly broadcast (supported by Olelo communication Media in Oahu, HI) of interviews with professional educators that brings more interest about cultural resources available in our network. Her areas of research and curriculum development are multicultural and diversity education, comprehensivel input in the language classroom, and technology in language teaching.

Mrs. Xiaowei Hunt has taught Chinese classes of all levels to students of different ages for 21 years in Las Vegas, Nevada. The institutions that have benefited from her Chinese teaching include the University of Nevada, Las Vegas, the College of Southern Nevada, Ed W. Clark High School, Beacon Academy of Nevada, Seven Star Academy, Nevada Learning Academy and the Las Vegas Chinese School. One of her goals in life is to make learning Chinese in the United States as popular as eating Chinese food. To reach this goal, Mrs. Hunt strives enthusiastically to make her Chinese class a fun and rewarding experience for every learner. In recent years, she has worked on Clark County School District’s World Language Cadre Committee to develop mentorship and leadership skills.

In 2013 she became a mentor and an instructor for the Chinese teacher group with CARLA’s STARTALK TTLO program and has been a mentor and teacher for participating Chinese teachers for five consecutive summers (2013-2018). Her motto is “Always learning”, which explains why she is always attending and/or presenting professional development workshops to colleagues at all levels—districtwide, statewide and/or nationally.

In her spare time, she enjoys physical activities such as dancing, hiking, wearing Chinese traditional outfits like Qipao, playing ping pong/badminton, and cooking. She also enjoys spending time with her family.

Ms. Ru-Bing Hsu received the NMOLE Outstanding Educator of the Year award for 2019. Since 2006 she has been teaching Chinese language and culture at Career Enrichment Center (CEC), a magnet high school of Albuquerque Public Schools (APS). Ru-Bing built the CEC Chinese program from Beginning Chinese to AP Chinese. She collaborates with the Chinese program at the University of New Mexico to offer high school/college dual credits. Ms. Hsu also worked with the Language and Cultural Equity office of APS and two local Chinese heritage schools to establish Chinese bilingual seal pathways for students. An active member of the New Mexico Chinese Association and the Albuquerque Sister Cities Foundation, Ru-Bing integrates Chinese language and culture teaching with participation in local and global communities to enrich students’ lives.

Briana Fortenbach-Titus, Teacher of the Year for the Oklahoma Foreign Language Teachers’ Association (OFLTA), is in her nineteenth year of teaching. She currently teaches seventh grade Latin and an upper school Ancient Greek class at Casady School in Oklahoma City. Briana earned a Bachelor’s degree in Classics at UC Davis and a Master’s degree in Teaching Latin and the Classical Humanities at the University of Massachusetts Amherst.

At Casady, Briana acts as a mentor to new teachers and coaches her colleagues toward their instructional goals. She also sponsors her school’s chapter of the Junior Classical League. In Oklahoma, Briana serves on the executive board of the Oklahoma Junior Classical League and is the classical languages representative on the board of OFLTA. She has presented a number of workshops for educators, both at Casady and at OFLTA conferences; these include topics such as “Making Assessment Meaningful,” “Get Organized to Reduce Stress,” and “The Right Tools: Approaching Your Textbook Using CI.” Briana has also served on committees to help rewrite Oklahoma’s standards for teaching World Languages and to review Oklahoma’s certification exams for Latin educators.

On a national level, Briana helped moderate sessions and provided technical assistance for the American Classical League’s 2021 Institute, which was held virtually. She is also the creator and administrator of the Latin Teacher Idea Exchange. This is a Facebook group that allows almost 4,500 Latin teachers from the United States and other countries to share ideas, discuss pedagogy, collaborate, and connect with each other. Because many members are the only Latin teachers in their school or district, having the support of an accessible online professional learning community can be extremely helpful and is important to their development as educators. In her free time, Briana enjoys crocheting, reading, and photographing the dogs she comes across, especially if they are Corgis.

The Texas Foreign Language Association Teacher of the Year for 2021, William Lee, received his B.A. in Latin from the University of Texas in 2000. Originally from Taiwan, as a non-native English speaker, he chose to follow his calling as a Latin educator. William Lee started his professional teaching career at Barbara Bush Middle School and Ronald Reagan High School in San Antonio, TX as an itinerant teacher. Currently, he teaches all levels of Latin at Tom C. Clark High School. William is the current Texas State Junior Classical League Co-Chair and the 2021 Chair for the American Classical League Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion Task Force. He has led multiple presentations on language teaching and learning, including coordinating workshops for the North American Cambridge Classics Project. He currently provides instructional content for the College Board. William is a current member of Texas State Junior Classical League, North American Cambridge Classics Project, and the American Classical League and Texas Classical Association.

Juan Carlos Fernández is the recipient of the 2021 Teacher of the Year award for the Utah Foreign Languages Association. Juan Carlos Fernández holds a Master’s Degree in History and is currently pursuing his Ph.D. studies in education (University of Utah) with the focus area of heritage language education. Although originally from Spain, Juan Carlos Fernández was a student of three different educational systems: Spain, Italy, and the United States. This multi-cultural experience shaped who he is as a teacher today. In the United States, he has taught classes K-12 and higher education. He currently teaches Spanish at the University of Utah and is also an instructor for the Bridge Program. For three years Juan Carlos Fernández served as an administrator in a public school in Utah. After over twenty years of teaching experience, he is still focused on providing rich and rigorous learning opportunities for all of his students.

W-2 - Raising the Value of Bilingualism with State and Global Seal of Biliteracy Credentials
Linda Egnatz - Global Seal of Biliteracy

This workshop is about the transformative power of a Seal of Biliteracy program. The workshop is broken up into three parts: (1) Research: Explore data that shows how a Seal of Biliteracy program that includes pathway awards builds excitement, learner autonomy and program retention. (2) Gamification: Discover how benchmark testing provides learners with motivating feedback, improves curriculum and instruction, and accelerates language acquisition. (3) Pathway Implementation: Learn more about the Global Seal of Biliteracy program, a free language credentialing program with a three-tiered pathway of serial-numbered certifications for language learners and users of any age. Participants will have the opportunity to create an implementation plan for students at the middle school, high school and/or university level that will lead to greater student engagement and success. Discussion includes: goal-setting, benchmark testing, combining State and Global Seal of Biliteracy recognition tools, and the Global Seal opportunity for university students and adults. Included is information on how the Global Seal of Biliteracy is being used for teacher certification and language pay differentials.

W-3 - High-Leverage Teaching Practices Lead the Way

Beckie Bray Rankin - Lexington High School & Eileen Glisan - ACTFL

Dive deep into how to create meaningful contexts for language learning in your classroom, then collaborate with others to put it into practice. Several past participants of the Leadership Initiative for Language Learning (LILL) will share their journeys of leading from the classroom with high-leverage teaching practices to affect change in their spheres of influence. Acquire strategies for dealing with challenges and setbacks when leading change. Create a personal plan of action to apply the learning back in our classes and communities.

This workshop has four segments: learning about the high-leverage teaching practice (HLTP) of establishing a meaningful and purposeful context for language instruction; collaborating on ways to integrate this into classrooms; learning from LILL Advocates how they impacted their spheres of influence with HLTPs; and collaborating on an Action Plan advocating for change in our learning communities. Participants will be able to:

- Explain the importance of and how to create a purposeful context for language learning
- Identify ways to lead a focus on high leverage teaching practices
- Plan strategies to be an agent of change in one’s sphere of influence

W-4 - Leading Successful DLI Programs: What We’ve Learned from Those Who Have Done It

Maria Cristina Ladas – Language Solutions, LLC

Very few building, district or state level administrators have had prior training and/or experience before they step into the responsibilities of their leadership role with a DLI program. Many of these new administrators find themselves learning the needed knowledge and skills while on the job, adding to an already full load of tasks and, often, stress.

Need to know:
- Know program model and pros of the one you’ve chosen vs other options
- Know and apply criteria for hiring staff
- Describe effective instructional practices and recognize them when you see them
- Cite research on outcomes
- Adhere to non-negotiables
- Schedule regular parent meetings to ensure parents have the most up to date information
- Report and explain student L2 progress

Participants will identify their roles in DLI leadership. Communication will be two-way; participants will ask questions of presenters, and presenters will question audience members in order to facilitate deeper and more natural conversation. The presentation will include video clips, examples of leadership tools, and other visual support to serve as both evidence as well as stimulate further questions and conversation.

Presentation 7 - Best of New Mexico: Rebuilding our Classroom Communities

Glenn Fetzer - New Mexico State University

This presentation focuses on priorities for a classroom’s ongoing, post-calamity educational recovery. First of all, it will review the three Rs of classroom community as the foundation for breaking barriers and rebuilding trust. Additionally, it will consider the nature of communities as ever-changing dynamics of interactions that can be re-shaped not only by the addition and attrition of persons but by the experiences of vulnerable constituents. Finally, rebuilding our classroom communities’ demands attention to the metaphor of re-stitching, referenced in the conference theme. Participants brainstorm to (1) assess where their students are in terms of relationships, (2) articulate a vision of what the classroom community will be, and (3) identify tactics to achieve the desired community.

Friday Presentations

SESSION 1

8:30 AM - 9:30 AM
Presentation B - The Power of Data-Driven Teaching
Roger Burt - Avant Assessment

By utilizing test data, my teaching practice and career changed. I went from trying to survive the next day to leading my district’s curriculum and assessment teams, and leading professional development to increase vertical and horizontal alignment district wide. The data that the STAMP test provided my students and me led to a focused vision of what I needed to do in my classes. Having caught the eye of district administrators, we then set out together to make district wide improvements for all students, and best practices within classrooms.

Presentation 9 - Critical Conversations: ACTFL Initiatives to Address Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion in the Educator Pipeline and Beyond
Victoria Russell - ACTFL/Valdosta State University & Howie Berman - ACTFL

Does our teaching profession reflect the diversity of our learners? Tap ACTFL initiatives and resources to bring in, develop, and nurture current and future language educators. The pipeline begins with encouraging a more diverse group of learners (such as students achieving the Seal of Biliteracy) and supporting heritage/native speakers to explore teaching as a career. Identify ways to support candidates on the path to certification. Share strategies to continuously develop educators by honing their teaching and leadership skills. Mentoring – including virtual coaching, professional learning communities, and ACTFL’s programs – is critical at each stage of the pipeline. Explore the challenges and collaborate to shape actions to take locally (as an individual, institution, or organization).

Presentation 11 - ALL Means ALL: Leveraging Your Language Program to Remove Educational Barriers for Students While Creating Opportunities for ALL Students
Ryan Smith - E. Otis Vaughn Middle School, Washoe County School District

Is it possible to create an environment of equitable opportunities for all students? Absolutely! School districts and individual schools can utilize their robust language programs to create a culture of inclusion and celebration, especially when talking about marginalized populations. By removing barriers and providing multiple opportunities to students, including offering classes in students’ home language, institutions can provide students with the tools they need to be successful in the future. In this session, participants will gather ideas to make their classrooms and schools an environment of collaboration, innovation, rigor, and equitable opportunities for all students. The presenter, an Assistant Principal, will share examples from his urban middle school, located in the center of Reno, Nevada of how he used General Spanish and Spanish Literacy programs to increase student achievement and create opportunities for all middle school students.

Presentation 12 - SILVER STRIKE SESSION

1. Developing Intercultural Competence Through Project-Based Inquiry
2. Let’s Get Cooking: Bringing the Classroom into the Home and the Home into the Classroom
3. Awards for All: National Spanish Exams Prizes and Scholarships

(1) Project-based inquiry models can be used as a method to help students develop intercultural competence in intermediate-level courses. Topics will include integration of ACTFL’s World Readiness standards and tips and challenges in utilizing this method for language instruction.

(2) Video-conference tools have broken barriers between home life and the classroom -- often in unintentionally amusing or even invasive ways -- but bridging that gap can also have far-reaching and highly positive effects on student engagement, sparking more effective, present, and personal intercultural connections between students both at home and in global communities. Using a coordinated series of home-cooking projects and events as a case study, this presentation showcases some of the ways that video-conference tools allow instructors and learners to create more immediate, culturally-targeted language communities, bridging the space between home and classroom and providing unexpected benefits such as family and friend participation and engagement as well as participation from students abroad. Presenter Jessica Wood is a Senior Lecturer of German at Northern Arizona University with over 20 years’ experience in both the language classroom and home kitchen.

(3) Will one of your students be the next award winner? This presentation will go over the many award options given to students taking the National Spanish Exams, National Portuguese Exams, and National Spanish Challenge. The presenter will go over the process of national winners and awarding medals (gold, silver, and bronze). Prizes include travel and scholarships, from elementary to high school students. Teacher travel awards will also be mentioned. A brief explanation of NSE, NPE, and NSC as well as application requirements will also be specified. The audience will also be given options and examples on how to award your own students after testing in addition to NSE awards mentioned.

Presentation 13 - Heritage Language Learners, RaRaRa (Research, Advocacy, Remodeling, Authenticity, Resources, Assessment)!

Celia Chomón Zamora - ACTFL

Heritage language programs are established in various education sectors (weekend community-based programs, in-school programs in public or private schools, and after-school programs) and have different goals and structures based on the language taught; the education sector in which the language is taught; and the focus, goals, and experience of program organizers, administrators, and staff. They often struggle with issues of trained teachers, curriculum and materials, assessments, support, and student engagement. Acquire strategies, resources, and research that will assist both new and existing heritage language programs and explore ways of providing heritage language learners the opportunity to utilize, grow, and learn their heritage language.

Presentation 14 - SEL (Social Emotional Learning) in the World Language Classroom

Jennifer Schwester - Brick Memorial High School

This interactive workshop will help teachers to understand what SEL is and is not, as well as practice ways to help students work on their social emotional learning skills in their target language. By helping students identify their emotions, acknowledge them, and work on ways to deal with them, teachers are giving students valuable life skills to be more effective and productive learners, as well as strengthen the classroom community.

Presentation 15 - National Board Certification for World Language Teachers: Do It!

Anthony “T.J.” Troche & Amy Murray - Spring Valley High School; Rachel Tillotson - Galena High School

In this session, three National Board Certified Spanish teachers from Nevada will explain the process of National Board Certification and what it can do for you as an educator. We will begin with an overview of the certification components, then take a look at the Core Propositions and Architecture of Accomplished Teaching and how they tie to National Board Standards for World Language Teaching, and we will also see how National Board certification candidates are evaluated as we see the rubrics for what accomplished teaching looks like.

SNACK BREAK

EXHIBIT HALL OPEN – 10:45 a.m. - 11:30 a.m.
This presentation investigates the role of both enhanced input and learner output on the acquisition of the target language, noticing grammatical structures and producing the language. Specifically, it aims at demonstrating that L2 learners who are given a story with enhanced grammatical forms and an opportunity to work in pairs will exhibit more learning, reflect on their linguistic gap and problems, raise their awareness, and express themselves (output) in a communicative activity than learners without the benefit of such opportunities. The presenter will discuss an empirical study involving L2 learners of French and its findings. Pedagogical implication of this study and recommendations for further research will be offered.

Room: Nevada 1
Audience: All
Focus: The Learning Experience
Language Focus: French
Presented in: English

This session will focus on creating and evaluating assessment tools that can support all modes of communication while promoting language performance and proficiency. Participants will have a chance to create assessment tools that can alleviate some of the struggles that come from grading while providing supportive feedback to students.

Room: Nevada 2
Audience: All
Focus: Performance/Feedback/Assessment
Language Focus: Spanish
Presented in: English

Supporting diverse learners who struggle due to unmet special needs is challenging. This session explores the unique strengths and challenges associated with different types of special needs (such as ADD/ADHD, anxiety and depression, Asperger’s syndrome, giftedness, hearing impairments, etc.) and offers specific strategies for supporting these students in world language classes.

Room: Nevada 3

Frustrated with providing meaningful feedback for your students? A single-point rubric may be just what you need! This session looks at what a single-point rubric is, how and when to use this type of rubric, and how to provide meaningful feedback and grades using one. In addition, participants will work on creating their own single-point rubric.

Presentation 20 - SILVER STRIKE SESSION
(1) Syntax is Sentence Structure: The Colorful OS Syntaxic Options Framework Makes Syntax Rock!
(2) Reflective Language Teaching through Peer Observation
(3) Re(Assessing) Oral Evaluation Rubrics

(1) Glen Kersch - Asociados Lingüísticos
(2) Malada Peaakula & Boeo Peaakula - Defense Language Institute
(3) Ame Cividanes - Pepperdine University

(1) The framework helps students visualize, understand, and master the five basic transformations in Spanish. Classroom use of the Framework focuses student attention on crucial structural differences between Spanish and English, both within each individual option, as well as between the five options. At the same time, semantics is not neglected, but also enhanced. The use of contrasting colors enriches the Framework by making sentence components visible. Whether one is a visual learner or not, a touch of color serves to create greater learner impact, adding a new powerful dimension to the framework, bringing alive the sentence components as learners visualize the OS syntactic options in contrast with one another within the framework Gestalt. It is useful in meeting California WL Communication Standard 7: “Language Comparisons in Service of Communication” where students investigate, explain, and reflect on the nature of language through comparisons of similarities and differences (i.e., ACTFL Standard 4.1).

(2) A constant challenge for language teachers is maintaining their professional development regarding using the most effective strategies and classroom management to influence higher learners’ achievement. This interactive presentation showcases how to develop an attitude of transformative teaching through reflection by applying peer observation of teaching. Language teachers are often misled by misconceptions of how peer observation of teaching is not beneficial for improving classroom processes and developing transformative, confident, and self-motivated teachers and learners. Presenters will demonstrate how formative assessment conducted through peer observation of teaching can remove those misconceptions and develop an appropriate attitude towards the benefits of learning by being observed by peers and receiving feedback, and observing the peers and providing them feedback.

(3) This presentation will focus on how a university’s language program conducted a year-long analysis of its oral assessment practices that concluded in a reassessment of its oral evaluation rubrics. The program’s self-study focused on assessment goals, analysis of rubrics, and conducting norming and calibration sessions with language instructors. The presenter will describe how this process took shape and how ultimately rubrics were adapted to more closely align with the program’s learning objectives.

Presentation 21 - Plant Seeds That Grow Critical Thinking Minds in Your Language Classroom

Ying Jin - Cupertino High School

Critical thinking is a skill that learners need to develop in order to thrive in today’s global society. How can we provide learners with opportunities to enhance this skill through the lens of a WL classroom? This presentation introduces several practical strategies that emphasize critical thinking while language acquisition is facilitated.

Mariana Bahtchevanova & Antonella Dell’Anna - Arizona State University

Although topics related to the sustainable development and sustainable practices in the target culture are traditionally included in a more advanced level language curriculum, different aspects of this broad topic can be successfully introduced in the lower proficiency level classes. This presentation will provide tips, suggestions, sample activities, and lesson plans illustrating the integration of the topic of sustainability in the Novice and Intermediate level language classes in connection to other general themes.

Presentation 2.4 - Two Imperfections in Spanish Orthography: A Suggestion for the Asociación de Academias de la Lengua Española

Tom Mathews - Weber State University

Spanish enjoys a nearly phonemic alphabet. However, two easily corrected defects remain after the official changes made in 2010. Two recommendations will be made in this presentation: (1) use an accent mark on three stressed monosyllabic words—lá, sí, mí—when they refer to musical tones, and (2) regularize the use of the letters ‘g’ and ‘j’ to represent the phoneme /x/. The current usage represents the etymology of vocabulary, but few modern speakers know the historical difference between the ‘g’ in coger and the ‘j’ in mujer. Contextual examples will be shared to illustrate the need for an updated orthography.

Presentation 29 - Loud and Proud: Connecting Spanish to Our Communities

Michael Griffin - Carnegie Learning

Let your Spanish-speaking students find and develop their voice by connecting with their community both in and out of the classroom. Our students benefit when they have a personal interest in their language learning. By connecting what they learn in class with the students’ own communities they can see the direct impact and influence Spanish has on their lives. In this session we will discuss how teachers can encourage their students to engage with their local communities at home and school as well as at the national and global level. Carnegie Learning’s En voz alta program strengthens students’ pride in their heritage and develops their confidence to express themselves in their communities and will be used to provide examples during the session.

Dana Goodier - Douglas County Schools

This session will focus on eliminating interruptions in the World Language (WL) classroom due to students' sometimes negative attitudes about taking an elective they didn’t necessarily choose. Many students don’t start learning WL until high school. How can students’ attitudes about an elective they didn’t choose be changed? How can teachers lose less time in dealing with classroom management and student engagement issues, whether you teach in-person and online? Leave this session gaining your time back!

Presentation 31 - Play-Based Learning to Build Connections

Emma Bricker - Educational Consultant

In this session, experience how play, moving, and learning are interconnected and can be used to build relationships between students. Cognitive connections and academic success can be improved through movement and play as evidenced by social constructionism, and infusing positive relationships and accountability into a classroom will create a safe and supportive learning environment. This session shows how to include purposeful movement, discovery learning through games and activities, and how to strengthen interconnectedness between students (and teacher!); all supporting and improving acquisition in the World Language classroom.

Presentation 32 - Promoting Diverse Perspectives through a Learner-Centered Curriculum

Bo Liu & Kexuan Wu – University of Oklahoma
This workshop will provide a learner-centered curriculum to promote diverse perspectives in a language teaching classroom. First, this workshop will introduce the structure and elements of a learner-centered curriculum. Then, based on the Intercultural Competence Standards from ACTFL, this workshop will provide curriculum planning, including instructional planning, learning activities planning, and assessments planning that promote diverse perspectives in a foreign language teaching classroom. Attendees will learn how to plan and design a learner-centered curriculum in a language teaching classroom and how to promote learners’ multicultural and multilingual perspectives. This workshop will emphasize on exploring different ways of thinking and being behind the target language and culture, planning multicultural learning activities, and including multiple authentic assessments. This workshop will use Chinese language teaching as an example, but attendees can adjust this curriculum in their language teaching practices.

Presentation 34 - Best of California: The Power of Our Stories and Voices

Vicky Xiong-Lor - Buchanan High School
Through the sharing of stories, teachers can empower students to share their stories and maximize the use of the target language in the classroom. The quote, “Students don’t care how much you know, until they know how much you care,” rings true in all that we say and do in the education profession, but more so in the World Language classroom where the students are most vulnerable and can learn best when the affective filter is low. Building time in the language classroom to connect and build at the social emotional level is key to showing students that you truly care about their health and well-being. In this presentation, participants will be introduced to storytelling as a strategy to reach and motivate students to learn more about their target language and culture.

As we move into the second year of a global pandemic, it's becoming more challenging than ever to keep and hold student engagement throughout class time. Simultaneously, there’s more pressure than ever to bring students to unprecedented levels of language acquisition within short amounts of time as second language programs across the country are having to justify their program’s existence and worth to parents, administrators, and students themselves. What are second language teachers supposed to do? One solution is to bring a little fun into the classroom, on a daily basis. This session will focus on ways to have fun while also assessing student abilities in the target language. As we’re all living through the same pandemic our students are, special emphasis will be placed on fun for the instructor – not just the students. Attendees will leave the session with fun formative assessment ideas for their classroom during the pandemic and (hopefully) beyond.

Presentation 48 - Your Students Only Care About the Grade—Until They Try Dessert
Chris Gerding - Boomalang
If we taught students how to build a car but never let them drive, would they care to continue? When you fell in love with language, was it only in the classroom? To borrow from a post by Dr. Jennifer Eastman, students must experience payoff for their hard work beyond a grade; to not “skip the dessert” of real target-language interactions. Whether dessert is traveling or conversing on Boomalang with native speakers, hear how crucial it is for progress. Over 97% of school courses using Boomalang renew each term, with teachers and their students often citing it as the most important and rewarding part of their course. As one instructor put her experience with Boomalang: “Proficiency gains just scratch the surface... I’m hooking my students to become lifelong learners.”

Presentation 50 - Advancing the Academic, Linguistic and Intercultural Journeys of Spanish-Speaking Students
Janet Boring - Carnegie Learning
Teaching native or heritage Spanish speakers provides a unique opportunity to connect their heritage, linguistic ability and overall academic progress. How you encourage and develop these students’ confidence and understanding of their diverse cultural and linguistic backgrounds has an impact on their day to day lives and their futures. In this session, you will explore how to provide students a safe space to be their whole self, build academic vocabulary and command of their language, and make connections between the cultures of their heritage, their communities and other areas of the Spanish speaking world. Success in your classroom will translate to gains in the students’ overall academic progress.

Presentation 51 - Teaching Foreign Languages with Picture Storybooks
Bo Liu & Kexuan Wu - University of Oklahoma
This workshop will explore ways and strategies to use picture storybooks in foreign languages teaching. First, this workshop will introduce the characteristics of Picture storybooks, Comprehensible Input, and Three Modes of Communication in language teaching. Then, this workshop will provide learning activities of using picture storybooks to inspire learners’ cross-cultural awareness, promote learners’ interpretive communication skills, build personal connections, and break cultural barriers. Through these activities, students will also advance interpersonal, intercultural, and presentational communication and enhance their classroom participation and engagement. Lastly, the workshop will analyze the current challenges encountered and resources offered in using picture storybooks in foreign languages teaching. Attendees will be provided available and relevant resources of picture storybooks in different languages. They can also adopt picture storybooks in teaching both language literacy and culture through fun classroom activities.

Presentation 52 - SILVER STRIKE SESSION
(1) From Objectives to Key Results in Teaching Reading Comprehension
(2) Activities Using Drama TV Series with Subtitles to Increase Students’ Sensitivity to Colloquialism

(1) Booe Deaksula & Maida Deaksula - Defense Language Institute Foreign Language Center
(2) Dohee Koo - Defense Language Institute Foreign Language Center

(1) One of the biggest challenges in teaching reading for many teachers is setting clear learning and performance objectives is not having a clear understanding of its purpose and relationship of the elements and processes between objectives and key results. Presenters will demonstrate how building reading comprehension is the process of extracting and constructing meaning at the same time through interaction and involvement with written language. It happens in the sociocultural process, and it consists of three elements: the reader, the text, and the activity, including reader-reader interaction over text. Presenters will emphasize how breaking up reading materials into manageable passages prevents readers’ cognitive overload.

(2) Showing a TV show (drama) or a movie to students with subtitles has both advantages and disadvantages. It offers rich cultural experiences beyond the textbooks, even though the experiences are indirect. On the other hand, one of the shortcomings in using subtitles is that students don’t pay attention to the target language, relying on subtitles to understand the story. The activities that the presenter will share keep students more attentive to the target language. The activities are composed of three parts. The warm-ups that briefly revisit the previous lessons, while-viewing, and post-viewing activities. While-viewing activities focus on language—transcription and two-way translations. During post-viewing activities, the class discuss the story and cultural aspects that they noticed.

Presentation 55 - Networking and Resource Session for German Teachers
Michael Shaughnessy - American Association of Teachers of German & Doug Philipp - Cheyenne Mountain High School

This session will focus on practical strategies and resources for growing and promoting your German (or other language) program in times of dwindling support. Whether it’s a need for up-to-date instructional resources or developing mentoring networks with peers, we’ll provide ways to connect with colleagues, access high-quality materials, and find funded professional development opportunities. The examples provided in this session are applicable to other language programs as well.

Presentation 56 - Humor in the Foreign Language Classroom is Serious Business

B. Lee Harren - Eastern New Mexico University

Traditionally, education has been perceived as a most serious and disciplined undertaking. Schools have become so obsessed with standardized test scores, discipline, objectives, competence, and proficiency that they have turned into rather grim places. Humor in the foreign language classroom can be used to stimulate learning, motivate students, and ease tensions. The presence of laughter in the classroom demonstrates that students are paying attention. When used wisely, humor in the FL classroom facilitates attention and motivation, improves student-teacher rapport, and makes learning more enjoyable. This presentation will demonstrate that to use humor in the FL classroom, one does not need to be a natural joke-teller or clown. Creating a humor-filled environment, jokes, lesson plans, personal stories, games, tests, and benefits of humor will all be addressed. Happy, interested students are more prone to higher achievement and fewer behavior problems. Taken seriously, humor benefits students and teachers alike.

Presentation 57 - How Video Assessment Improves Student Learning Outcomes Faster

Sam Farley & Sam Butterfield - GoReact

One thing that is often missing in language instruction is self-awareness on language learning performance. Using video partnered with embedded text, audio feedback brings that awareness to the student, drastically improving student learning objectives. The more opportunities students have to create with the language and receive individual and meaningful feedback, the better they will apply and retain what they are learning in your courses. Come learn how GoReact helps give students the tools they need to succeed in the language learning journey.

Presentation 58 - Raising the Value of Bilingualism with State and Global Seal of Biliteracy Credentials

Linda Egnate - Global Seal of Biliteracy

This session is about the transformative power of a Seal of Biliteracy program. Learn more about the Global Seal of Biliteracy program, a free language credentialing program with a three-tiered pathway of certifications for language learners and users of any age. Participants will have the opportunity to create an implementation plan for students at the middle school, high school and/or university level that will lead to greater student engagement and success. Discussion includes: goal-setting, benchmark testing, combining State and Global Seal of Biliteracy recognition tools, and the Global Seal opportunity for university students and adults. Included is information on how the Global Seal of Biliteracy is being used for teacher certification and language pay differentials.

Presentation 59 - Journals... With Sprinkles to Top

Jennifer Newman-Cornell & Zita Myers - Northwest Career and Technical Academy

Journals are like ice cream scoops—lots of flavors and lots of choices. Plus lots of toppings and variations! Come and get ideas for the different flavors of journals that can be used in the WL classroom and how to encourage students to add their own toppings as they eat their way to proficiency. All resources will be shared and this session will be interactive with creation (no ice cream, sorry!) as a group as we chat.

Presentation 60 - Game Talk: The Why and How of Using Games for Proficiency Gains

Andrea Schweitzer - St. Rita Catholic School

As language teachers aim to embrace more proficiency-based strategies in their classrooms, it is critical to take a look at what role “games” can play to best meet their goals. Teachers who have traditionally used games as a means of “practicing” language or “drilling” discrete concepts may be missing out on golden opportunities to connect with students through purposeful, communicative exchanges. Teachers who shy away from games because they think it is time wasted, may be cheating themselves of a key ingredient that could motivate and excite their students to partake in abundant discourse fueled by meaningful, comprehensible input. This presentation will discuss WHY game-play is important in the language classroom and HOW to go about playing games in a way that promotes proficiency gains at all levels.

Presentation 61 - Comprehensible Input from Square One

Anne Marie Chase - Douglas High School

According to Dr. Krashen, Comprehensible Input is the key ingredient for language acquisition. This session is designed for educators who are curious about Comprehensible Input and want to learn practical ways to implement Comprehensible Input Teaching in their classrooms. In this session, participants will learn to lead students through Card Talk and Picture Talk, two CI strategies, while keeping the fundamental principles in mind to make language comprehensible to students: speak slowly, teach to the eyes, stay in bounds and check comprehension.

Presentation G3 - FOCUS SESSION: Connecting Your Classrooms with the World While Being Isolated from It
Akash Patel - Ignite Middle School

A study by the US Travel Association found that educational trips had a positive, lasting impact on students’ education and career because the trips made them more engaged, intellectually curious and interested in and out of school. The ongoing COVID19 pandemic has posed unexpected challenges to both domestic and international travel. Find out how you can connect your classrooms virtually with the world LIVE and for FREE with the Happy World Foundation Inc.

Presentation G4 - FOCUS SESSION: Writing to Grow: Building Blocks to Proficiency
Greta Lundgaard - Consultant

Are you taking advantage of Presentational Writing as a tool for and as evidence of proficiency growth? You should! An intentional writing plan provides opportunities to process, practice, and apply new learning in context. A writing plan enables teachers to learn when to un-grade as well as teach grammar in context while moving students across proficiency borders. This session explores a writing output sequence and revision strategies that deepen and expand writing performances that grow language proficiency.

Presentation G5 - FOCUS SESSION: Linguistic Inclusivity in the Second Language Classroom
Heather Sweetser - The University of New Mexico

Students in our second language classrooms come to us from a variety of linguistic backgrounds and scholastic experiences. For some, English is their second (or third or fourth) language, and they are learning our classroom’s target language through an already ‘foreign’ lens. Others have never learned the difference between nouns and verbs. Then we have our students who get frustrated with fellow classmates who are not understanding or learning fast enough for them, with most students falling somewhere in the middle. This interactive session will focus on techniques on how to create a learning environment that takes the whole student into account, no matter their background, creating an inclusive classroom where everyone can learn the target language. Attendees will leave the session with concrete examples of how to adapt models of linguistic inclusivity in the second language classroom.
